J. J. Fritz is the new manager of the Battell forest, it was announced at the office of the President this morning. Debating Teams Chosen For Coming Contests

Gallagher, K. Anderson, and Savitt To Make Hamilton Trip—Anticipate Keen Opposition

Elbert T. Gallagher '23, Kenneth T. Anderson '25, and Max M. Savitt '25 will compose the forensic team which will meet the Hamilton orators at Clinton, N. Y. on Mar. 23, it was announced this morning. They will defend the position that the Allied war debts should not be cancelled, while Guilford M. Austin '23, Philip M. Toleman '24, and Malcolm T. Anderson '25 have been selected to debate the affirmative side of the same question with a delegation from the University of Vermont on the home platform Mar. 27.

One man alone of this number has had previous experience on the intercollegiate debating platform, Savitt '25 having been one of the winning aggregation which met the Vermont debaters in the triangular debate last year. Following up this first successful appearance, Savitt entered the Parker speaking contest in May and carried off the first honors. Again he was chosen to fill a position on the Varsity team which defeated Syracuse on the League of Nations question last November.

Elbert T. Gallagher '23, although a new man in intercollegiate debating, has been identified in oratorical circles on the campus ever since his entry into college. In the debate on the soldier's bonus last spring, Gallagher it will be remembered figured prominently along with the redoutable Adams. Kenneth T. Anderson '25, another Parker prize winner, is best known in connection with dramatics, although he has always taken an active interest in intra-mural debating.

Philip M. Toleman '24, won a prize in the Merrill speaking contest last year, and acted as alternate to the team which debated Syracuse. Malcolm T. Anderson '25 and Guilford M. Austin '23 are both newcomers in Varsity debating, but have had an abundance of practical experience in public speaking.

ARTIST'S PLAYING CHARMS AUDIENCE

Spalding's Playing of Mozart Evidence of Genius

H. G. O. Praises Violinist's Performance In Chapel

By H. G. O.

The modern violin world is as completely dominated by the personality of Leopold Auer as was pianistic art of yesteryear shaped and molded by the genius of Franz Liszt. Elman, Jascha Heifetz, Zimbalist, Miss Parlow, Seidel and hosts of lesser lights all pay allegiance to the famous Russian pedagogue. The words " pupil of Auer" are the supposedly necessary "Open Sesame" to violinistic prestige.

Albert Spalding, who played in Mead Memorial Chapel last Wednesday night can stand on his own merits. A pupil at the Bologna Conservatory, he has never been dominated by Russian influence. With Kreisler he can claim the distinguished honor of being the only great violinist now appearing before the public who has won success without the tutelage of Auer. That he is far and away the greatest American violinist is easily assured; that he ranks among the first virtuosi of the world is as well established a fact.

The most salient feature of Spalding's art was its clear and lucid sanity. Evident in every detail, it was especially noticeable in the performance of the Cesar Frank Sonata, an interpretation which was a monumental one. The emotional intensity of this magnificent work has taxed more than one violinist —Elman overburdens it with richness, Heifetz never reaches its exultant heights—but Spalding remembered that power is the result of economy of means. He recalled that Frank's music is essentially religious; that the fulness and poignancy of the phase can best be obtained by conservatism of dynamics and tempo; that spirituality is the result of restraint, not of indulgence. We do not wish to imply that there was lack of warmth or color, but only that the balance between subjectivity and objectivity was accurately conceived and perfectly maintained.

Mouse Makes Merry And Again Sets Starr Afire

Ignites Matches In Desk In Room Of Simmons And Laird—Loss Sustained Slight

The notorious match-gnawing mouse who makes his home in South Starr Hall made his second attempt to destroy the historic old structure last Friday about 10:30 a. m., when a small fire was discovered in the room of Simmons and Laird on the third floor.

The maid making her daily rounds found the room filled with smoke, and sounded the alarm to everyone within ear-shot. Mr. Huggard, McLeod '26, and Cooley '25, were the first to arrive on the scene and speedily put the blaze under control by the use of an extinguisher and a few pails of water.

The fire was found to be confined to the interior of a desk, the drawers of which were tightly closed. The occupants of the room being out, it was concluded that loose matches in the desk must have been the cause of the fire. The only loss sustained was that of the desk and a few books and papers which were inside it.

The scene of the blaze is directly over the room in which the more disastrous fire of last year had its origin.

HARVARD PROF. TO SPEAK ON LAW AS A VOCATION

The next lecture in the vocational series will be given by Professor Felix Frankfurter Friday evening at eight o'clock in the lecture room of the Chemistry Building. The subject of the talk will be "Law as a Profession." Prof. Frankfurter was born in Austria and came to America in 1894. He has attained noteworthy distinction here. He has served as assistant to the Secretary of War and as secretary and counsel to the Presidential Mediation Commission. In June 1918 he was appointed chairman of the War Labor Policies Board. He is a member of the American Bar Association, of the American Political Science Association and of the Academy of Political Science. He has written several books, one of which, "Cases Undeer The Interstate Commerce Act," was published in 1915.

Student Council Passes Rules For Frosh Hazing

Abolish General Parties After Oct. 6—Court To Decide On Punishment For Offending Frosh

Following a well attended open meeting of the Student Council on Monday afternoon at which time the hazing question was discussed pro and con the Student Council held a closed meeting yesterday, at which time the following recommendations to the Undergraduate Association were adopted to govern hazing next fall:

Recommended: That the general hazing period for next year be restricted to one week commencing at 6 a. m. October 1 and terminating at midnight on Saturday, October 6.

That there be no further general hazing throughout the college year.

That in case of individual violations of Freshmen rules and college traditions, the offending freshmen be tried before any three upperclass members of the Student Council as judges, a majority vote of the judges being necessary for conviction and sentence.

That the Sophomore Rules Committee be responsible for bringing up cases before the tribunal and for carrying out the orders of the court.

That the annual Freshman P-rade be held before the Middlebury-Union game on October 6 and that the Hat Scrap be held between the halves of the game.

That there be no paddling of Freshmen as part of the general hazing.

That the traditional prayer meeting be held on the first night of college, Thursday, Sept. 20.

As is customary the traditional running on campus and wearing of white sox and unique ties will be in force and all of the hazing will terminate in the grand finale of the week of Oct. 1 to 6.

FIRST NUMBER OF "THE BLUE BABOON" COMING IN APRIL

Managing Board Of Comic Publication Organized

HARRIS '26, EDITOR

Student Council Sanctions New Magazine

Recognizing the long felt need of a humourous publication representative of Middlebury College, a managing board has been organized to supervise the publication of the first issue of such a periodical. Although the plans for such a paper have been underway for several months definite announcement has been withheld until the success of the project seemed assured. The first number will appear about the middle of April.

The time has come in college annals when a college or university is judged from the outside, to a large extent, by its football and other athletic teams and by its humourous magazine. In fact in many cases the name of the humorous publication of many of the larger colleges has become synonymous with the name of the school. It was, with this in view, that plans were started last fall towards the establishment of such a periodical at Middlebury that will rank it with the leading colleges of all parts of the country.

A petition sanctioning the publication of this magazine was passed last fall by the Student Council and later by the Undergraduate Association. The matter then came before the Student Life Committee of the faculty and was passed by them in the early part of January. Since that time plans have been going ahead rapidly for publication of the first issue.

The new Middlebury publication will be known as "The Blue Baboon," this name having been selected from a large group of suggested titles. In makeup and content The Blue Baboon will be similar to the Jack-O-Lantern of Dartmouth, The Purple Cow of Williams, and The Brown Jug of Brown University. It will contain a large variety of jokes, humourous poetry and sketches, and a wealth of drawings ranging from the ridiculous to the sublime. Already a large amount of material is ready for the first issue but much more is needed and the board is relying on the student body to provide material of this nature and all persons

Prof. White Tells Of Italy's Bloodless Revolution In Letter

In a recent letter to a member of The Campus Staff, Prof. Raymond H. White, of the Latin Department, who is spending his sabbatical year abroad and is at present in Rome, gives many interesting facts regarding Italy's late bloodless revolution, and outlines his personal impression of conditions there now.

Extracts from Prof. White's letter follow.

"To begin with," he says, speaking of the fascisti, "you know doubtless that their name comes from the emblem that they all wear, namely, a representation of the 'fasces' carried by the lictors or personal attendants of the Roman consuls, and symbolizing the character of their power. It means that the fascisti bind themselves to uphold the power and authority of the state, and that means in these troublous days in Europe, opposition to all forms of bolshevism, communism, or radicalism of every sort, and the furthering in every way of the interests and genius of the Italian people. The success they have had is doubtless due to conditions in Italy, and to Italy's relations to foreign powers.

"One of the first things we learned of on our arrival in Naples early last October was the failure of a large bank there, resulting in losses of the most serious kind to large numbers of people, some of them citizens of other countries. Soon after, the papers published a report of the operations of the railroads for the year. The report

Morey Issues Call For Grid Candidates--Starts Practice

Fifty men answered to Coach David B. Morey's call for football candidates in the gymnasium last Monday afternoon. The spring training begins at once and will last over a period of 5 weeks. For the first week the candidates will be given rigid instruction in the fundamentals of football. A few picked veterans of the 1922 squad are assisting Coach Morey to instruct these men. The men who are now assisting are: Captain Moynihan, in charge of the centers; Drost, Ashley, and Jakway in charge of the half backs; Quackenbush and Papke in charge of the quarter-backs; Riegelman and Kalin in charge of the guards; and Gallagher in charge of the ends.

After a week of indoor practice, if Porter Field is not clear of snow, it will be cleared off and the practice will be held there daily. Uniforms will be issued the men and they will get a real taste of football. The last 10 days of the practice will be devoted to scrimmage. In this way Coach Morey will get a definite line on the men that will go to make up the squad for next fall. Those who show up well now will be selected to enter the fall training camp at Lake Dunmore early in September. As Middlebury has now adopted the one year ruling, every man who is available for next season's team is in college at the present time. None of the class of 1927 will be either allowed to enter the training camp or to play on the 'Varsity.

LEADERS

The somewhat striking contrast between the European and American ideal of education and the respective results of each, offers at present, considerable material for reflection. The European aim of education— that of training leaders by so severe a system that all but the most superior are eliminated—has, as its result, the creation of a comparatively small class which is intellectually far above the rest of the people. Such an ideal would be inappropriate in a democracy. America's purpose has been an education as widespread as possible of the mass of the people. This has resulted in a general high average of intelligence throughout the nation but also in a lack of a specially trained ruling class.

With the emphasis laid upon the group instead of upon the individual and with cooperation and conformity to the group encouraged rather than originality and individual thought, the tendency has been toward mediocrity. Hence the favorite criticism that American education produces no great leaders and that American students are passive material poured into moulds and all turned out exactly after the same pattern.

Democracy is now in the greatest need of defense and and support; for its efficient working demands above everything else intelligent and wise leaders. Is it not then for the student class from whom these leaders must be chosen, to rise to the occasion and meet the insistent demand? Let them keep their splendid ability to lose individual interests in cooperation with the group but let them break the shackles of the ideas imposed by the group and strive for greater individuality of thought and action which alone develops true leaders.

ENLARGE THE LIBRARY!

Middlebury has made marked progress during the past year in regard to her athletic standards; her general educational policy, with particular regard to admission requirements; and in her plans for the future development of the College by means of modern methods and devices. There is, however, one sign of deficiency that has for some unknown reason remained unnoticed. During the past year the Egbert Starr Library has been able to barely get along with its present equipment, and as an emergency measure, the Pedagogy Library was opened to accomodate the increasing number. This has of late been insufficient, but new room has not been supplied to meet the existing need. It is likely that all available space is occupied, thus shutting off any chance to remedy the situation.

The recent gifts made to Middlebury for the erection of new quarters for the French School, the Music School, and other divisions of the College, is a very good sign of growth. Not only do the cramped conditions in the Starr Library hinder this growth, but also hinder the opportunity for the students to study under as nearly ideal conditions as are possible. Is there not some way that a library fund could be started for the express purpose of enlarging the library, of providing special seminar rooms, and if possible additional study space, and executive offices. The large requirements made on the Contemporary Civilization students alone were sufficient to deprive the Faculty of their room, while across the hall the Executive office is cramped into a single room. The best work cannot be done under such conditions. Is there not someone who will start a fund the purpose of which would be to remedy this situation? It might even be made a student project!

* * * *

Professor White's comments on the Italy of today, printed elsewhere in these columns are particularly timely, and show that the youth movement, so prevalent and strong on the continent is about to lead Europe out of her abnormal conditions into an era of peace and goodwill among nations.

* * * * *

It's just about time that a youth movement should start in the United States and attempt at least to insert a little purity into our political make-up.

THE PERISCOPE

He stood by her,
She stood by him;
His arm was long,
Her waist was slim;
You guess of course
What happened then?
(Girls will be girls,
Men will be men!)
Since love is sweet,
And life is young,
No wonder they
Together clung.
And tho we hate
This tale to mar;
They clung to straps
In a crammed street-car.

As one of the local citizens was heard to remark: "No matter how hungry my horse may be, he won't eat a bit."

I often stop to wonder
At fate's peculiar ways,
For it seems that all our famous men
Were born on holidays.

"That's more crust than I can stand," said the man in the one-arm restaurant as he pushed his apple pie to one side.

College Pride

1st Frosh: "See that man over there smoking that "M" pipe?"
2nd Frosh: "Uh-huh. What of it?"
1st Frosh: "Well, he lit it with MY match!"

As some wise man has put it, no one has ever become a star by staying out all night.

Mead Chapel Starts a Diary

MONDAY:

Well, here's the beginning of another week. It sure is lonesome standing up here on this hill. That old dormitory gets a great deal more attention than I do. Wow, how my head aches every time they ring the bell. Wonder why the students don't look more solemn when they come up to the daily service? That organ seems to be under the weather this morning! Oh, there's a visitor going to lead this morning. Poor man! He thinks he's being honored, but I know that the professors are tired of doing it every week.

TUESDAY:

Had a visitor myself last night. One of the students slipped in here and practiced his music lesson. He certainly could play! Even the pews sat up and took notice. That man in the moon is getting too fresh! He deliberately winked at me twice last evening. I have a fine view of the campus from here. I'll wager that that Old Chapel is jealous. The catty thing keeps her back to me all the time!

WEDNESDAY:

Wonder why all the students are hanging around this morning? Oh, a cheerrally! I do wish they would pick out a day for it when I'm feeling a little better. The middle of the week is so hard on one! Well, well, I do believe that that fellow has come to life at last. He's walking down the hill with a girl for the first time since he entered college. He's doing the thing up brown, too, carrying her books for her. Well, nothing to do 'til tomorrow!

If Ben Franklin had gone to college, perhaps his famous maxims would have looked something like this:
"A fair exchange is no bargain."
"Make hootch while the yeast lasts."
"It never rains but somebody gets wet."
"Early to bed and early to rise, makes a guy small and stunted in size."
"Birds of a feather flunk to-gether."

D. S. H.

Whatever trouble Adam had
No man in days of yore
Could say when he had told a joke
"I've heard that one before"

The march into the Ruhr is about to end according to news dispatches. At that rate they must have the Frenchman talking again.

COMMUNICATION

Undergraduate Association President Replies To "'25"—Declares Soph's Misrepresented Facts

To the Editor of The Campus:

Last week's Campus published an anonymous communication, apparently written by a male member of the class of '25, which in demagogic language attacked the hazing of freshmen at Middlebury. To that communication, in whole and in detail, I wish to take exception.

The tone of the letter, its gross exageration, the unwarranted implications necessarily drawn from its description, and its misrepresentations of fact, were all calculated to spread among alumni and other subscribers the idea that brutish man-handling was the rule here at college. If the writer has evidence that the recent hazing affair was a "grudge party," that the freshmen were "beaten into submission," or that "inch thick paddles were used with such force that they were splintered and broken" upon the poor virtuous freshmen, I challenge him to present his evidence before the Student Council or the Undergraduate Association, the proper place for obtaining redress for such offenses.

The fair and above-board methods among Middlebury men who object to college customs or practices is to present them before the Student Council in open meeting. Such an open meeting was held a week ago Monday. Moreover, the Undergraduate Association meeting of last week gave the writer opportunity to voice his opinions. It would have been much more effective, even disregarding good taste, to have presented his case there, rather than to broadcast his venom thru the columns of the Campus.

The writer closes his letter by a reference to the Ku Klux Klan and by implied threats as to what will happen if his ideas are not carried out. I do not know to what extent the gentleman is the mouthpiece of the faculty, he omitted to sign his name. As President of the Undergraduate Association, I cannot, however, permit his communication to go unchallenged or unrebuked.

Eddy S. Kalin '23.
President
The Undergraduate Association.

Plan To Develop Intra-Mural Sports This Fall

Graduate Manager Considering Ways And Means For Enlarging Local Interest In Games

Following closely the announcement that the One Year rule would be placed in operation this Fall, comes a statement from the office of the Graduate Manager this morning to the effect that plans are under way for the development of intramural sports, and the awarding of suitable medals for excellence in these contests. While none of the definite details were made public, it is expected that a general announcement will be made at the opening of the College year next September.

Graduate Manager Bigelow pointed out that if the One Year rule carries with it the freshmen schedule in the various sports as is contemplated at the present time it will create an additional expense, though the exact amount has not even been estimated.

"It will require at least a year's experience before we will be able to determine definitely the cost of this new program," Manager Bigelow said this morning. "I am of the belief, however, that freshmen activities will have to be adjusted to the money available."

It was also learned at the Graduate Manager's office that the football report presented to The Campus early this week was not complete, although at the time it was thought to have covered everything. A dentist bill for work on a player's teeth has been presented and paid. It has not been determined as yet whether the injury received was in a 'varsity contest or whether it was a result of the class team schedule played last Fall. If the latter conclusion is carried out by several seasons' experience, it may bring about a general revision of the interclass games.

Due to the feeling that has been prevalent for some time, the Graduate Manager believes that next year's athletic appropriations will include a large amount for the developing of intramural sports. This will give a larger number of students an opportunity to take part than it has been possible to get out for the varsity teams. It is believed by the Graduate Manager that the One Year rule will have a decided influence in encouraging a larger participation in sports on the part of the general student body.

Glee Club Preparing For Appearance Here

Prof. Larsen to Lead Men's Chorus in Home Debut at Opera House March 23

The Glee Club will stage its sixth concert of the season at the Opera House, Mar. 23, with Prof. Alfred Larsen conducting.

The program will be much the same as that given on the Newport-St. Johnsbury-Montpelier trip in February, at all of which places the Club was heartily received in selections by the Club proper, will form the backbone of the program, which will include renderings by the string quartet and male quartet, vocal and violin solos.

Although the personnel of the Club has been altered somewhat from its original form, the group who will sing the 23rd is the same which made the February trip and which has been drilling together since the beginning of the semester. H. G. Owen '23 will accompany the Club.

The detailed program of the home concert will appear next week.

Sigma Phi Iota will hold an informal dance at the Grange Hall Saturday.

New Jersey Pastor Delivers Stirring Sermon At Vespers

Takes "Be Sure Your Sins Will Find You Out," As Text Of Sunday Address

"Be sure your sin will find you out" was the text of the sermon preached by the Rev. A. G. Butzer of Ridgewood, N. J., at the vesper service Sunday afternoon. He spoke of the modern tendency to overlook sin and its consequences. He quoted Harry Emerson Fosdick, who says that the world's greatest need is a sense of sin and an attempt to conquer it.

Mr. Butzer said that the natural tendency since the beginning of time has been to hide sin.. This increases its hideousness and the terror of its final disclosal. He compared sin to a mysterious bloodhound which tracks the sinner until at last it devours him. He gave examples of famous criminals who had been brought back to justice, not by detectives or the police but by the conviction of their own sin.

"Every sin journeys toward publicity," he continued, "and one day we will all stand as we really are. Pompeii was buried for fifteen hundred years but when it was at last dug up, the story of its sin was laid bare for all to read. The only way to deal with sin is to find it out before it can find you out. This is done through confession or through struggle against sin and Christ alone can help one in this difficult task."

Correction

To correct an error in last week's Campus, Robert Shepardson '21 is not at present in Harvard School of Business Administration, but is with the Vermont Marble Co. at Rutland, Vt.

Harvard—Harvard is to have a new swimming pool, according to plans just announced. The Pool, which is to cost $100,000 will have a seating capacity of 2000.

John Hancock Said:—

(IN 1774)

"I HAVE ever considered it as the indispensable duty of every member of society to promote, as far as in him lies, the prosperity of every individual, but more especially of the community in which he belongs."

Life insurance is inseparably bound up with the prosperity of every individual, family and community. It is a secure and prosperous business and satisfactory to the salesman in every way.

The JOHN HANCOCK would like to interest a few ambitious men who graduate this year to make JOHN HANCOCK selling their life work.

Statistics on college graduates who have entered life insurance place it at the very top as a source of income. Before making a decision as to your career it would be well to make inquiries of the "Agency Department."

Q. E. D.

"SHOW me," says the math. teacher—and when the chalk clouds have settled down there are a lot of figures signed "Q. E. D." which aren't "Q. E. D" at all.

Say "Show me" to the shaving cream you're using and see what answer you get. Will it soften your beard right down to the base before the breakfast bell has rung twice? Will it leave your skin smooth and supple after every shave and give you the well-groomed look of perfect skin health?

Every day men are finding how much easier shaving can be made because of the speed and thoroughness with which Williams' softens the beard. Likewise, they are finding a help for their skin in Williams' that they never found in any other shaving cream. Try it yourself. The difference may surprise you.

Notice the hinged cap. You can't lose it—and the tube hangs up!

Blue Hoopsters Average 7.6 Point Loss During Season

Win But Four of Twenty-Three Contests During Year—Coach Smith Praised For Work

Although confronted by the heaviest schedule in the history of basketball at Middlebury the Blue and White team came through the season in fine shape when the length of the schedule and the comparative strength of opposing teams is considered. In the majority of games the Black Panther hoopsters were playing against stronger teams and their showing against these teams from larger colleges was especially noteworthy. In spite of the fact that the team won only 4 of the games on its schedule it can be said that the team was successful because in the 23 games played they were only outscored by about 174 points, or an average of 7.6 points per game.

Despite her large number of victoryless games Middlebury has become known throughout the middle west, and in a favorable manner, due to the western trip during the Christmas vacation. The trip was a hard one and after travelling all day in order to play at night it could not be expected that the Blue and White taem could compete equally with a team that was fresh and in fine form. Whether the Christmas trip is advisable another year is a question but it served as an excellent advertisement for the College and provided the team with a wealth of experience for the later games of the season.

A large amount of the credit for the success of this year's quintet is due to Coach Carl Smith who worked long and faithfully in order to develop a smoothly working machine and with the start made this year it is evident that even more can accomplished next year under a professional coach. Even this fact alone is an important one for it takes time, and often a great deal of it, to develop a winning aggregation and now that this start has been made, Middlebury can look forward to a most successful season next year.

Sixty Try-Out For Places On 'Varsity Track Squad

Coach Brown Pleased With Showing His Charges Are Making In Practice Sessions

Now that the basketball season is over it is expected that several new candidates will report for track this week and put forth their best efforts with the other 60 men who toil 3 times a week in the gymnasium under the direction of Coach Arthur M. Brown. The men are under quite a handicap in being prevented by the unfavorable weather from getting outdoor practice. However, as soon as the snow disappears the squad will use the cinder paths and walks in daily workouts. Coach Brown gave out word this morning that owing to the very short space of time between the re-opening of college and the track meet with Williams, quite a number of men will remain here during the Easter holidays training for the opening contest.

There is good material among the freshmen who are out for track this year, according to Coach Brown. While it is a little too early to make any definite choice of the best candidates, there are a few who are continuing to make a good showing at practice. Among them are: Fish, for the half mile and the mile, a letter man in cross-country last fall; Browsowsky, in the weights; Robinson, distance, also a letter man in cross-country last fall; Wittenberg, at the weights and shots; Potter, performing consistently in the high jump; McLeod, for the quarter mile; McLaughlin at the shots and hurdles; Finch, at the hurdles; Chandler, at the dashes; Brenton, distance and middle distance.

Among the last season's men who again are working out on the cinder path are: Captain Shelvey '23, Kendall '24, Palmer '25, distance; Grey '23, middle distance; Wexler '24, the two mile; Oliver '25, is showing good form in the distance; "Doc" Cook '24, is performing consistently well in the high jump, quarter mile and the broad jump, and will probably be a record-breaker this year; Beck '24, in the hurdles; Sikorski '23, in the discus; Whitten '24, Krichbaum '24, and Carlton '24, in the pole vault.

Captain Robinson '22, of last year's track team will be greatly missed this year but it is expected that his loss will be overbalanced by having more men in each event.

College Orchestra Planning Two Concerts—Program to Center About Light Opera and Classical Numbers

Plans for two concerts by the College Orchestra are rapidly taking shape according to an announcement yesterday by Albert C. H. Bashaw '26, librarian of that organization. One of the concerts will be given during commencement week, and the other sometime in the near future. The date for the first concert has not been decided upon. Seventeen members comprise the club's personell. Professor Alfred Larsen of the Department of Music is director of the organization.

Prof. Larsen is developing a program for the organization which will center about notable works in light opera, as well as several classical numbers. It is Prof. Larsen's desire to make the orchestra one of the leading college musical organizations on a par with that of the Glee Clubs. Every effort is being made to secure the services of those who play musical instruments to lend their support to this activity, and it is hoped that with a larger number, still better work might be accomplished.

The officers of the club for this year are: Miss Adeline Angier '24, president; Miss Beryle C. Gaylor '25, concert-master; Albert C. H. Bashaw '26, librarian.

The club holds regular rehearsals at the Woman's Club rooms every Friday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock.

Honor System Loses At Co-Ed Debate Friday

Club Continues Discussion of Local Problems—To Argue Separation of Colleges Next

"Resolved: That the Honor System Should be Adopted at Middlebury," was the subject debated upon by the Debating Club of the Women's College in Old Chapel Friday afternoon, the negative side gaining the judges' decision.

Lelia Wallace '25, acted as chairman and introduced the speakers. Bernice Clarke '26, championed the affirmative, supported by Rachel Barnes '26, and Esther Frost '23. The negative side was defended by Marion Lawton '26, Ruth Eddy '25, and Lillian Dirks '24. Isabel Sutherland '25, Marion Turner '23, and Wilma Walsh '24, acted as judges, awarding their decision in favor of the negative side.

The Debating Club will argue the question: "Resolved, That the Men's and Women's Colleges of Middlebury Should be Separated," at its meeting in Old Chapel Friday.

Now there are only 16 days until the Easter vacation!

SCHOOL OF CHEMICAL ENGINEERING PRACTICE

A graduate school offering a course of study leading to the degree of Master of Science, with field stations established at six different companies located in Bangor, Maine; Boston, Mass.; and Buffalo, N. Y. These companies produce sulphite and soda pulp, paper, caustic soda, chlorine, heavy acids and salts, sugar, coke, gas, steel, ammonia, benzol, etc.

The more important operations of Chemical Engineering, as typified by the above processes, are studied systematically by means of tests and experimental work on full scale plant apparatus. One of the objects of this work is to fix in the mind of the student the principles of Chemical Engineering and to correlate these principles with practice.

The work is non-remunerative and is independent of control by the plant management, and therefore the whole attention of the student is directed to the study of Chemical Engineering.

The total number admitted to the school is limited and the students, studying and experimenting in small groups, receive individual instruction.

Before admission to the School of Chemical Engineering Practice, all students must have adequate preparation in chemistry and engineering. The able student can complete the requirements for the Master of Science degree in one and one-half years.

At the present time, thirty-one colleges and universities are represented among the men attending the School of Chemical Engineering Practice and these men comprise over one-half the enrollment.

Women Vote On America's Attitude On Ruhr Invasion

Result Of Ballot To Be Sent To Washington—Part Of National Student Forum Plan

A Student Government Association meeting was held in the Old Chapel Monday afternoon for the purpose of voting upon some new resolutions concerning the enforcement of certain of the rules. The president read a letter from the National Student Forum asking the Women's College of Middlebury to join the other colleges in sending an expression of its opinion upon the Ruhr situation and the stand America ought to take in the matter to President Harding. A committee has been appointed to prepare material upon this subject to present to the Women's College tomorrow so that the vote may be taken and the decision sent to Washington immediately.

National Student Forum Of Yale Starts Nation-Wide Vote On Ruhr Invasion

(Special to the Campus)

New Haven, Conn. March 13,—An intercollegiate referendum on America's attitude toward the Ruhr Crisis is now being held under the auspices of the National Student Forum at Yale, which is one of a score of colleges voting on this question. With the result of 2000 questionaires sounded, resolutions expressing the student sentiment on this question will be telegraphed to President Harding, Sec. of State Hughes, and to Senator William E. Borah.

The questionaire will ask if France was justified in sending troops into the Ruhr, if the occupation of the Ruhr will be likely to advance or retard the economic recontruction of Europe, and if this movement will hinder or help the prospects of international peace in the future. In the final question, the students will be asked if France was not justified and so on, do they favor immediate action on the part of the United States to secure a settlement.

Green Mountain Club To Erect Lodge At Intersection Of Long Trail And Rutland-Woodstock Pass

The Green Mountain Club is to have a large new clubhouse on the summit of Sherburne Pass, east of Rutland, Prof. P. C. Voter of the local section announced last night. The construction will begin as soon as weather conditions will permit.

The clubhouse is the gift of Mortimer Proctor and will be furnished by Mr. Proctor's mother. It will be purely rustic in design and so constructed that it will fit naturally into the surroundings. It is to be a two-story structure and will be possessed of a double fireplace. Detailed plans have not yet been completed by the architect, Paul Thayer of Wallingford.

The clubhouse will be the property of the entire Green Mountain Club, and will be large enough to accomodate 40 to 50 people. Water will be piped from a brook nearby.

Prof. Voter also announced that the local section of the Club will begin the reconstruction of Lake Placid Lodge as soon as the season will permit. Meanwhile the campaign for new members is in full swing. Any who are interested should see Prof. Voter or Prof. Harrington.

Rev. Leon M. Adkins '19, who has been preaching since his graduation in Pittsford, Vermont, is, since last September, a student at the School of Theology of Boston University.

By Irvnig Brant

Cast

Yun Lee — Eleanor Frost
Yun Lo — Marguerite Loukes
Tang Go Hang — J. Audrey Clark
Sing Hai Ling — Richard Rapport
Sam, a colored waiter — Kenneth Anderson

Coach—Mary Broomell

These two plays made an excellent evening's entertainment, furnishing, as they did, an interesting contrast in subject and method. Miss Campbell's work in the first is to be especially commended. She was well supported by all the cast. Mr. Lawton's conception of his part was true, though it would have been more affective had the whole movement of his episode been speeded up. It was an especial pleasure to see new people in the cast who show so much promise.

The Celestial Honeymoon presented by a more experienced group was a more finished production. Mr. Anderson was an overwhelming negro waiter with a wonderful efficacy in prayer. The two Chinese gentlemen, Brothers Clark and Rapport, were polished to the last word in smoothness. The brides with their pattering glides were both charming, but very set, young ladies. Intrinsicly the play was not so good as 'Op O' My Thumb but its presentation was pleasantly artistic.

The gymnasium is, actually, no place in which to produce one act plays. Their effects get lost among the rafters. Their production to be successful needs a feeling of intimacy between actors and audience. There is nothing like that possible in the "gym." These plays suffered on this account, but in a way for which no one was responsible. To encourage wider participation in the acting by club members is the purpose of presentation of these plays. Would it not be well in planning for next year to arrange for frequent private presentations before the club in some suitable place, each given by a different group? Thus all the members might be given a chance to try out their acting ability and the presentations might be made the occasion of friendly criticism and encouragement on the part of the members in the audience.

"Servitor's Ball" Saturday—Function Marks Starting Of New Custom—Dancing In Hepburn Social Hall

Perhaps the most unique as well as the most notable event of the present social season will take place on Saturday evening, March 17. The "Servitor's Ball" will mark the beginning of an annual event in the life of the college. From the following lines you will learn the nature of this event:

Up at Hepburn every day
With the dish rag o'er the tray,
Our husky gang of scullions will trudge along;
And the hungry gang, answers Rip's electric clang,
Then you know our scullion crew is going strong.
Hail, all hail! to Hepburn scullions
There's the crew that beats them all.
Tho our "rep" is not in cash,
We're the berries slinging hash,
For we're Ma Mason's crew of Hepburn Dining Hall.
Be it feat of strength or wit
There the scullions make a hit
For in every branch of college life we shine,
Be it sport, debate, or dance
There the scullion takes his chance
For our scullion crew will always head the line.
Oh no matter what the size
Watch the scullion nail the prize,
For in every match you'll find him going strong;
At the call for loyal men
Watch the candidates we send,
Every scullion in our crew will go along.

Dancing will begin at 4:00 p. m. and continue throughout the evening. Dinner will be served at Hepburn Commons.

Has Honor Of Being Youngest President Of Delta Kappa Epsilon

(Special to THE CAMPUS)

New York, March 9—Edwin W. Willcox of New York city, a graduate of Middlebury College in the class of 1904, was elected president of the council of Delta Kappa Epsilon at the regular meeting of the council held on March 2 at the general headquarters of the fraternity located at the D. K. E. Club, 30 West 44th street, New York, which council consists of 43 members, representing as many chapters in the various colleges and universities scattered throughout the United States and Canada, and over 15000 living Alumni.

Mr. Willcox has the honor and distinction of being the youngest member ever elected president of this national fraternity, having been vice-president for two years, a member of the executive committee for five years, and on the council for seven years, and having succeeded the late Hon. A. Barton Hepburn, who was also president of this fraternity, and a trustee of Middlebury College, as the representative of the Middlebury Chapter of D. K. E. on the National Council.

Mr. Willcox since graduation from college has been practicing law in the city of New York, and may be remembered in and about Middlebury and Addison County as being a Bridport boy, the son of the late Edwin D. Willcox, and a brother of Hon. Julius A. Willcox of Montpelier, Vt., a superior court Judge of Vermont.

Brattleboro Paper Calls Attention To Appearance Of Middlebury's Representatives There

Middlebury is becoming better known not alone by her athletics, forensic and Glee Club representatives, but also by the members of the faculty and administration who are called to various parts of the state and nation to address organizations. The recent visits in Brattleboro elicited the following editorial comment from the Brattleboro Daily Reformer.

With frequent visits of Dartmouth College professors who are giving extension lectures here and favored also by speakers from Middlebury, Brattleboro is getting a considerable reflex of collegiate atmosphere this winter. It is noted that during the present week there have appeared here three speakers, all of whom have had some connection with Middlebury College. The Hon. John E. Weeks, Director of State Institutions, who spoke at the Congregational Church Tuesday evening,and Judge Frank L. Fish who addressed the Daughters of the Revolution yesterday, are both trustees of Middlebury College, while Professor Duane L. Robinson, who spoke to the Brattleboro Woman's Club on Wednesday, is secretary of the Middlebury College faculty who have ideas for The Blue Baboon are requested to leave the drawings or humour in sealed envelopes at the College Bookstore and proper credit will be given to those whose contributions are favorably acted upon.

First Issue Of "The Blue Baboon" To Appear In April Board Announces

The managing board of The Blue Baboon is made up for the most part of men who have had previous experience in publication work that fits them for supervising the editing and publication of Middlebury's newest paper. The business end of the paper will be under the dirct supervision of Adrian Leiby, managing editor, who was advertising manager of the 1926 Handbook and also elected to this position on the 1917 issue. The art staff will be in charge of John J. Leary, whose ability along this line is known to every student in college and whose work has appeared in the Kaleidiscope and in other forms about the campus. The editorial branch of The Blue Baboon will be in charge of Lloyd C. Harris, literary editor, who was engaged in newspaper and publicity work for two and a half years previous to entering Middlebury. Richard T. Calef, advertising manager of the 1924 Kaleidiscope and on the business staff of The Campus will be advertising manager and Edward S. Twichell will be service manager. John E. Connelly will be assistant literary editor, both he and Twichell having had considerable experience on school papers.

Drama Club Plays Please Large Audience In Gym Thursday Night

Mrs. Chisolm Faraday — Mary Broomell
Phyllis — Reba Maxfield
Martin — Rowland Shepardson

"Green Stockings," a three act comedy, will be presented under the auspices of the Dramatic Club March 22nd. With an all star cast of unusual ability it bids fare to rival any comedies hitherto produced. It is the old situation of the overworked elder sister, who eventually revolts against her family and life. She invents a fictitious love affair which gets her into difficulties from which she seemingly cannot extricate herself. All in all we feel that the fortunes of Celia Faraday will be worth seeing especially when in the hands of such a competent actress. It is not a play calculated to move one to the depths, but those desirous of a charming evening's entertainment will not be disappointed.

Albert Spalding's Playing Charms Capacity Audience In Mead Chapel

For scintillating charm and breadth of utterance we do not see how Spalding's interpretation of the Mozart Concerto could be surpassed. To play Mozart well is a sure test of musicianship. To play it as Spalding played it is an evidence of genius. First of all must come the beautiful tone, suave and velvety, yet never overfull. Then the careful balance and graceful turn of the phrase and lastly a certain sublimity of spirit—these are essentials if one would interpret Mozart. Spalding was tried, and not found wanting.

Perhaps the third group afforded the most genuine pleasure of the evening for the majority of the audience. Here Spalding gave fresh evidence of his musicianship in the charming arrangements that he has made of the Liszt and Chopin. The G Flat Waltz did not seem to be as grateful to the violin as did the B Minor Waltz or "Hark, Hark the Lark" but it was exquisitely played. As encores Mr. Spalding played the Chaminade, "Serenade Espagnole," Kreisler's "Liebesfreud" and a "Passepied" of Delibes.

Exaggeration is an easy sin to assume when one must speak of such art as Spalding's. Flaws are inevitable but one would hesitate to catalogue them. America may well be proud that she has a son who can not only bravely serve under the colors but who can also represent the greatest things in music.

Comparisons are invidious, but we cannot refrain from calling to mind a recent concert which we attended where one who has claimed to be a great artist lowered himself and some persons' conception of the art of music by the low ideal which he set for his audience. Spalding's sincerity is a pleasing counter-irritant.

Mr. Andre Benoist at the piano afforded unusually fine accompaniments. His art and skill were thoroly appreciated.

Debating Team Chosen To Argue War Debts Issue With Hamilton

That the impending forensic contests with Hamilton and with Vermont are arousing enthusiastic preparatory work by the Varsity debating squad was well demonstrated at the formal practice debate in Old Chapel last Friday.

Gallagher '23, Austin '23, and K. Anderson '25, argued in favor of war debt cancellation, while Toleman '24, M. Anderson '25, and Savitt '25, ably defended the negative. A vote by the audience on the merits of the debate showed a general opinion favoring the negative, although there seemed to be no unanimity for either side.

The way in which the men handled the question was warmly commended by Prof. Abbott. Gallagher and Savitt in their rebuttals waxed particularly eloquent.

showed a staggering deficit, and as the railroads in Italy are owned by the state, the situation naturally was destructive to public credit: The lira continued to depreciate on the exchange until by about November 1 the dollar would buy 25 lire (at par the dollar is worth about 5 lire).

"A big meeting of fascisti was held in Naples about October 24, and it was then that the plan of action was decided upon that resulted in the revolution, the march on Rome, and the passing of the Government into the hands of the fascisti, with Mussolini as Premier. A copy of the New York Times that came to hand, contained the news of the bloodshed caused by the revolution. This was a surprise to us, for as far as we know, the revolution was a peaceable and bloodless one.

"I have read with much interest the utterances of the leaders of the movement. Their claim is that revolution was the only means of saving the country from ruin. The governmental operations were hampered by multitudes of officials whose chief function was to draw their breath and their pay; no charges could be made through the regular channels as the parliamentarians blocked all attempts on the part of others to reform what they had proved incapable of reforming. According to estimates of the party then in power, the deficit for 1923 would be staggering and these estimates were too moderate.

"Besides the internal situation, there was the problem of Italy's foreign policy. I have talked with some Italians on the subject and the feeling seems to be that Italy lacked strong leadership during the negotiations following the Great War; that France and England had had their way and Italy had acquiesced in everything to her own detriment. When you realize, for example, that Italy must get both coal and petroleum from outside you can see that she has an interest in international politics.

"To all appearances, Italy is generally behind the fascisti movement. Not entirely, however, and naturally they fear a counter-revolution. It is known that certain of the working classes are bitterly opposed to 'fascismo.' If for example I were to go down into the Trastevere section of Rome and start to sing 'Giovinezza' (the popular song of the fascisti), something more than the admiring glances of the inhabitants would be directed at me from the windows.

"All the power is centred in Mussolini, who is a man of few words and much labor. It will be interesting to see how successful he will be in impressing the gospel of labor on Italy. As you perhaps know, Italy gets to the office for business about 10:00 in the morning; then there is a period from about 12:00 to 3:00 when it closes up the office and slumbers, followed by another period of activity lasting until about 5:00. Work is subject to interruption at any time in order to light the inevitable cigarette. If Italy is going to play her part well, some of this will have to change. The impact of the movement and of the personality of Mussolini has already made itself felt within Italy and without. The fascisti have already instituted many reforms especially in the economic sphere, the effect of which on the exchange would have been still more apparent if the general political situation in Europe were not in such shape.

"As I have said, the fascisti fear a counter-revolution. Only a few days ago the papers told of wholesale arrests thruout Italy of communists and radicals who were said to be engaged in a plot against the government, and to be in possession of funds furnished them by communistic interests in Russia. Recent decisions of the Grand Council of the fascisti look toward the elimination from their number of every element which in their opinion might not be absolutely loyal. Whether the fear of disloyalty within their own ranks will lead them to take measures that will lose for them the support of elements whose aid they will ultimately need, remains to be seen.

"So far their efforts have been directed to interests peculiarly Italian in the political and economic sphere. A recent decision of the Grand Council, however, seems to have broadened the movement to include interests of the Italian people wherever they might be. Provision is made for a department to have charge of the establishment and maintenance of groups in all the continents, the idea being to keep alive in Italians outside of Italy a love for the home country. Coupled with this, apparently in anticipation of difficulties involved, is a warning that such groups should work in harmony with and subject to the laws of the various countries concerned.

"In direct contrast to this is our theory that we have had enough of foreigners who can't be assimilated and made American citizens, who want the privileges of America without its responsibilities. This phase of the movement in so far as it touches our Americanization problem would be a good subject for thought and debate.

"One can not live in Rome, even amid the stirring events of the present, without continually feeling the reality of its long past. There is the column of Aurelius, and that of Trajan, in the base of which once rested the ashes of the great Emperor, and which still looks down on the ruins about it, now surrounded by busy modern streets some dozen or fifteen feet above the old level. These ruins are patrolled by all sorts and conditions of cats. It seems that some individual has left a sum of money to feed and maintain these cats who now make their home there. The other day, as I was passing, a piece of meat was thrown in. Immediately it was approached by four different cats from as many different directions, but they all stopped before it and glared suspiciously at one another. The ghost of Trajan may not have known the inner meaning of the trivial incident, but what a fine caricature of European politics!

"It is difficult for one living in such a young country as ours to appreciate the associations that gather about everything and every place in a city so old. Here are the apparently insignificant remains of the Regia in the Roman Forum, where Julius Caesar spent the last night of his life; above are the gardens that now cover the ruins of the place of Tiberius on the Palatine. And there is the Protestant cemetery out near the Pyramid of Cestius, where lie Shelley and Keats. * * One passes up the Via Flaminia, now the Corso, thru the busiest part of modern Rome, once the Campus Martinus; off to the left is a great building where the symphony concerts are now given. In it once reposed the remains of the first Roman Emperor, and it is still called the Augusteo. Farther on, a tablet on a house reminds one that here Goethe lived during his residence in Rome. And finally we reach the Piazza del Popolo. A few days ago we stood on the Pincian Hill looking down on a great gathering of fascisti in the square below us, and I found my thoughts turning back to a day centuries ago when eager crowds stood in this same spot waiting to see Trajan pass on his return from his victories in far off Dacia.

"One can not understand Rome and Italy without a knowledge of the past, and when he has learned something of the past, he realizes how essential is a true knowledge of it for a proper comprehension, not merely of Italy but of Western civilization. We shall do well at Middlebury if just because of our desire to understand the present and play our part in the future, we devote ourselves thoroughly and sympathetically to the study of our Roman heritage.

Fifty Respond To Coach Morey's First Call For Grid Candidates

It might seem to the casual observer that the college has no chance of having a winning team next fall but on the contrary, Coach Morey feels that with the 50 men now working out, the chances are very promising. He is highly pleased with the available material. With the instruction and practice that the men are now getting they will enter upon the regular training in the fall well grounded in the fundamentals. It will not be necessary then to waste valuable time in learning the coaching system, the men being so advanced that they will be ready for actual workouts. This time saved is a big factor in getting the team into shape early in the season and often is the means of winning early season games that might otherwise be lost.

A freshman team will be organized for the members of the class of 1927 who are out for football. They will have a regular schedule, playing games here when the 'Varsity is away. In this way, men will report who felt that they had no chance on the 'Varsity and will become so proficient when they make the 'Varsity the following fall that they will have all the fundamental knowledge necessary.

The following men are now listed on the squad: McLaughlin, Cass, Chapin, Brosowski, Frederickson, Buckley, Ehlert, Potter, Yeaw, Mullen, Brenton, Daly, Davie, Holdstock, Bennett, M. Rowe, Knowles, Bourney, Finch, R. L. Rice, W. Rice, Fish, Kilbride, Leary, Wittenburg, Carboy, McGowan, Clowar, Vallee, Peck, Cook, C. Whitney, Vose, Laird, Lambe, Whitten, Myers, and Howard.

In addition to these men the following veterans who are now assisting in training will join the squad: Captain Moynihan, Quackenbush, Papke, Riegalman, Novotny and Klevenow.
